

INTERPOL Washington, U.S. National Central Bureau

Deputy Assistant Director Keith Hood

Keith Hood serves as the INTERPOL Washington, the United States National Central Bureau (USNCB), Deputy Assistant Director for Border Security Division. Keith's duties include the management and execution of all International Capacity building efforts for Interpol Washington.

Keith previously served as the Department of Defense (DOD) Subject Matter Expert-Forensic, Biometric and Improvised Explosive Devices, Counterterrorism Division, INTERPOL Washington. In this role, Keith provided guidance, expertise, and assistance to Senior Leaders from USNCB, DOD and Department of Justice (DOJ), regarding forensic and biometric counterterrorism vetting, screening, and associated technologies.

Keith's prior operational assignments outside Interpol Washington include serving as the Identity Resolution Operations (IDRes) Operational Lead, U.S. African Command, where he fielded and trained biometric equipment to over 18 African Nations. Keith also served as the Subject Matter Expert for forensics and biometrics in North Africa, establishing the first exploitation lab in Djibouti.